

PASSING THE TORCH

THE MEANING OF BLOODY THURSDAY

Since the one-year anniversary of Bloody Thursday, longshore workers have refused to work on July 5 each year to honor our martyrs and remember what they died fighting for. But who were they and what happened to them? Who killed them — and why? And what does it mean for us to take this day off every summer more than 90 years later? How does it shape our union and what lessons can we draw for today? We know the story already, now we want to hear from you about what it means and what to do with it. As always, all are welcome: members, B men, casuals, pensioners, auxiliary, friends and family. Lunch is provided and the floor is open.

FRIDAY, JULY 31ST @ NOON
ILWU LOCAL 23 HIRING HALL

Presented by the ILWU No. 23 Young Workers Committee & Education Committee
